A family of marionettes on a fairyland theme — a princess called Destiny, Dunstan the dragon, Dexter the jester — sell for $32.25 each and can put on a great show in one of the store's hand-crafted puppet theaters ($100 and up). There are also one-of-a-kind character dolls with movable joints priced from $60 to $250.

"I like to get things that please the hand, the eye and the mind," said owner Pam Pier, who believes that wooden blocks make the perfect interactive toy. She offers several beautiful building sets from Germany — priced from $84 to $230, depending on the size — that can turn kids into master builders.
